Overview of a biblical theology of Paul's theology using Romans as the outline. Heavily influenced by (dated) lexical resources, Sander's covenantal nomism, and some Barrian fallacies. Useful bibliographies. The stated method is dialogue, but in practice it seems more like biblical-theology mixed based on grammatical-historical exegesis.

The Theology of Paul the Apostle by James D.G. Dunn

His theology is Christocentric. The Gospel according to St. Paul is that the Son of God became man in Jesus Christ, in order to reconcile all mankind to God the Father, by his life, passion, death and resurrection. For Paul, Christ is the glorified Christ, now reigning gloriously in heaven, and seated at the right hand of the Father.

Pauline Christianity or Pauline theology, also called "Paulism" or "Paulanity", is the theology and Christianity which developed from the beliefs and doctrines espoused by Paul the Apostle through his writings. Paul's beliefs were strongly rooted in the earliest Jewish Christianity, but deviated from this Jewish Christianity in their emphasis on inclusion of the Gentiles into God's New Covenant, and his rejection of circumcision as an unnecessary token of upholding the Law.

Paul likes the idea so much he uses it a second time in chapter 3: “ the mystery of Christ.. has now been revealed by the Spirit to God ’ s holy apostles and prophets ” (Eph 3.4). The apostles and the prophets are working out the implications of the incarnation of Jesus Christ. The laity has a prophetic role not as futurists, or ecstasies, but interpreters of the word of God in and for their culture.

By this he meant that through their original bodily unity, man and woman expressed God ' s invisible love and grace to each other and to the rest of creation (TOB 97-98).

This highly original interpretation of Paul by the Jewish philosopher of religion Jacob Taubes was presented in a number of lectures held in Heidelberg toward the end of his life, and was regarded by him as his "spiritual testament." Taubes engages with classic Paul commentators, including Karl Barth, but also situates the Pauline text in the context of Freud, Nietzsche, Benjamin, Adorno, Scholem, and Rosenzweig. In his distinctive argument for the apocalyptic-revolutionary potential of Romans, Taubes also takes issue with the "political theology" advanced by the conservative Catholic jurist Carl Schmitt. Taubes' reading has been crucial for a number of interpretations of political theology and of Paul--including those of Jan Assmann and Giorgio Agamben--and it belongs to a wave of fresh considerations of Paul's legacy (Boyarin, Lyotard, Badiou, Žižek). Finally, Taubes' far-ranging lectures provide important insights into the singular experiences and views of this unconventional Jewish intellectual living in post-Holocaust Germany.
